The Boston Advertiser thinks "the whole record of the Democratic party is a warning that the rights of the colored race would be endangered by its sapremacy." The illustration is found in Georgia. The opposition has been in power there for the past four years, and an impartial observer in one of our magazines declares that the rights of the black mee are shamefully ignored. Thirty thousand of them are excluded from the pdils by intimidation, and school accommolations are provided for only about one furd of the colored children.
